Responses to French requests

The Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage recognizes the importance of fulfilling its obligations to respond to verbal and written requests from the Acadian and francophone community in the language of their choice. The department has a policy on written and verbal communication in French which stipulates that all correspondence (paper or electronic) received in French will be replied to in French. Verbal requests from the public to communicate in French are, to every extent possible, handled by bilingual staff.

French-language services inventory

Acadian Affairs and Francophonie

All staff at the Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie are bilingual (French and English). All services are offered and made available in French and include publications and materials for the public such as the annual report on government's progress in French-language services, the Acadian Affairs and Francophonie website and news releases. The Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie offers programmes, tools and resources to assist government in providing services in French including French-language training for public servants, workshops to increase awareness of the Acadian and francophone community and of government's obligations under the French Language Services Act and Regulations, as well as the Bonjour! visual identification program.

Archives, Museums and Libraries

Nova Scotia Archives

In previous years, the Nova Scotia Archives provided French language services to 6000 visitors annually. However in 2020–21, it switched over to English language services to researchers via pre-arranged appointment. The Nova Scotia Archives provides services in French to on-site visitors, and by email and letter mail.

The website features close to 20 virtual exhibits, resource guides and searchable databases in French. Online materials, including historical photographs, information databases and explanatory articles, are made available in French to the province's secondary schools to support the curriculum and for student projects and reports. Annual website upgrades ensure that additional French-language materials are incorporated into the site.

Nova Scotia Museum

The Nova Scotia Museum has 28 sites across the province. The Historical Acadian Village of Nova Scotia in Lower West Pubnico presents the story of the Acadian people in French and English and receives annual operational funding from the department.

Many provincial museum sites have French-speaking interpretive staff and bilingual signage and exhibits. The Nova Scotia Museum website features information sheets and visitor information in French. The Nova Scotia Museum guide is available in French, and can be found at museum sites as well as at visitor information centres, and on the Nova Scotia Museum website.

Nova Scotia Provincial Library

The Nova Scotia Libraries Act funding regulations make provisions for an annual provincial French-language operating grant payable to regional library boards where the French-speaking population exceeds ten per cent of the total population of the area served. This operating grant assists the regional library boards in providing French-language library services. Two regional library boards qualify for this grant: Eastern Counties Regional Library Board and Western Counties Regional Library Board. Both boards employ French-speaking staff and offer French-language websites, programmes and collections.

The Nova Scotia Provincial Library produces many library-related materials for the public in French. They include brochures and other promotional and informational pieces, such as the Check Us Out! brochure, as well as the Nova Scotia Provincial Library annual report, which is available in French on the Nova Scotia Provincial Library website.

All nine regional library boards collect and circulate French-language materials in multiple formats, including books, databases, music, movies and audiobooks. The digital media collection provides online access to French-language eBooks and audiobooks for library card holders across the province.

Communications Nova Scotia

The department follows Communications Nova Scotia's guidelines for issuing news releases in French. All news releases from the Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie are issued in French and the division is served by a bilingual communications advisor. Media interviews are offered in French upon request.

Communities, Sport and Recreation

The department supports communities by helping them build capacity and deliver culture, recreation and sport programming. Every year the department works with its colleagues at the Coaching Association of Canada to ensure that all relevant coaching materials are available in French. The department annually supports the Jeux de l'Acadie, a culturally important event for Acadian youth.

The department is actively engaged with the Acadian and francophone community with regards to meeting their community and recreational infrastructure needs. The department's grant programmes support these goals, including the creation of all community recreational signage in French.

Community support comes in many different forms, from providing support to sustain communities from a food security perspective, as well as supporting key transportation funding, which ensures that citizens can easily access community resources. The department annually supports Acadian and francophone organizations, and encourages them to apply to all programmes and awards. The department also ensures that a representative from the Acadian and francophone community participates as a member of the Lieutenant Governor's Community Spirit Selection Committee.

Collaboration is ongoing with the Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie to support opportunities for capacity building and programming in Acadian and francophone communities, with French-language service offerings continuing to expand.

Culture and Heritage Development

Each year, the department awards the Prix Grand-Pré to recognize work that reflects Acadian cultural values, literary arts and visual arts and crafts. Information about the award is provided in French and English.

Nova Scotians from diverse communities, including the Acadian and francophone community, are encouraged to volunteer as participants on jury and peer-assessment panels for all the department's funding programmes and awards. When a French-language literary application is made to the Grants to Individuals programme, a French-language panel is convened to assess the application.

The department works closely with the Creative Nova Scotia Leadership Council and the Arts Nova Scotia board, whose membership application process aims to encourage diversity. These government–culture community partnerships strive for a balance of artistic disciplines, culture and communities in their membership. Both boards currently have members from the Acadian and francophone community.

The department also allocates funding through the Community Museums Assistance programme to museums in Acadian and francophone communities, including the Église Sainte-Marie museum (Church Point), Les Trois Pignons cultural centre (Chéticamp), and the Musée des Acadiens des Pubnicos (Lower West Pubnico) and is working closely with the Stratégie de promotion des artistes acadiens sur la scène internationale (SPAASI), an initiative led by the Société Nationale de l'Acadie (SNA), to foster strategic development for Acadian artists in international markets.

Policy and Corporate Services

Policy and Corporate Services is responsible for corporate policy development, strategic planning, research, evaluation, intergovernmental relations, information and risk management, grants management and department-wide administration.

The research unit provides opportunities for the Acadian and francophone community to contribute to new research and learn more about Nova Scotia's culture and its economic and social benefits. The policy unit provides assistance and advice, as required, to the French-language Services Coordinating Committee.

The department publishes its statement of mandate and its accountability report in French and makes them available on the government's website.

French-language Services Coordinator

The French-language services coordinator represents the department on the interdepartmental French-language Services Coordinating Committee, which assists and advises government on the implementation of the French-language Services Act. Each coordinator is responsible for writing the department's annual French-language services plan.

Contribution to the preservation and growth of the Acadian and francophone community

The Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage recognizes the importance of French-language services and our staff endeavours to fulfil our responsibilities under the French-language Services Act and Regulations. We believe Nova Scotians should have access to quality government services in French, and this plan demonstrates our commitment to ensuring our programmes, policies and services address the priorities expressed by the Acadian and francophone community. To achieve this aim, we collaborate with designated public institutions across government through the French-language Services Coordinating Committee. We greatly value this partnership, which ensures a continued understanding of the unique needs of our province's Acadian and francophone community.

The department makes a significant contribution to preserving, promoting and supporting the Acadian and francophone community's culture, library and museum resources, and to supporting the delivery of provincial government services in French. Nova Scotia's Acadian and francophone culture and heritage is preserved through the department's curatorial and archival collections and activities. The Historical Acadian Village of Nova Scotia, part of the Nova Scotia Museum, offers visitors an opportunity to experience life in an Acadian village in the early 1900s. The Nova Scotia Archives holds a significant collection of materials relating to the Acadian community, which it makes available to the public through its catalogue and website. Past issues of Le Courrier de la Nouvelle-Écosse (1937–2002) are available in a digital format for the public to access.

The department also supports cultural, heritage and library activities in Acadian and francophone regions. The funding awarded through various culture grants and the Vive l'Acadie community fund contributes to the development of Acadian and francophone artists and cultural organizations. The department presents the Prix Grand-Pré annually to support and recognize the work of an Acadian or francophone artist. Operational funding is provided to libraries and museums serving or located in Acadian and francophone regions. This includes special funding for the Acadian and francophone community to improve French-language collections in libraries located in qualifying regions. Thanks to this funding, the Acadian and francophone community benefits from better access to library, archival and museum resources in their mother tongue.

The Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie plays a central role in supporting the development and delivery of French-language services throughout the provincial government by providing programmes and services to help build the capacity to offer services in French proactively. This includes French-language training for public servants, the Bonjour! visual identity programme, and funding through the Canada–Nova Scotia Agreement on French-language Services. Acadian Affairs and Francophonie works to ensure that government is aware of the priorities of the Acadian and francophone community and that its needs are considered in the delivery of government services. Acadian Affairs and Francophonie frequently supports important community initiatives such as the development of French-language media.

The department recognizes that access to quality government services in French benefits the Acadian and francophone community's economic, social and cultural well-being, and contributes to its continued growth and development. We encourage Nova Scotians to request services from government in French. We also encourage Acadians and francophones to have their voices heard by participating in agencies, boards and commissions, which are regularly advertised by the Executive Council Office. As we continue to maintain and improve our French-language services, we welcome feedback on our progress and we invite you to share with us your comments or questions by contacting our French-language services coordinator. If you wish to make a formal complaint regarding French-language services, please contact the Office of the Ombudsman.
