

Community Food Access and Literacy Fund

Guidelines 2021-2022

Introduction

Government is committed to additional support to Nova Scotia's most vulnerable families, seniors and youth during the COVID-19 pandemic. This is a challenging time for everyone, and access to local, healthy food and food literacy skills have never been more important.

Program Description

The Community Food Literacy and Access Fund supports initiatives that:

- improve local/neighbourhood food access for vulnerable Nova Scotians;
- teach meal planning skills;
- teach nutrition and budgeting skills; and
- build and maintain community gardens to increase individual, family, and community food access.

Resources about staying active and healthy while stopping the spread of COVID-19 is available here <https://novascotia.ca/coronavirus/resources/>.
